Pathways to Bar Passage for International Law Students and LL.M.s

Wednesday, March 29, 2023, 12:00 to 1:00 PM ET

A Virtual Program

Preparing for and passing a bar exam after law school frequently presents a challenge for graduates, especially international students and those for whom English is not their first language. International LL.M. students can find the exam especially challenging because many programs do not cover all of the topics tested on the bar exam. Success will often depend on significant preparation and effort.

This free webinar will include the interview of a seasoned professor who has studied the challenges faced by foreign law students for more than 20 years, a Swiss law graduate who worked for a bar examination preparation company while in law school and went on to become a partner in a well-known law firm in New York City, an LL.M. graduate who is now an in-demand speaker on how LL.M.s can make the most of their unique circumstance, and a recent graduate who recently passed the New York bar exam. We will also hear from the Chair of the International Law Section, who successfully passed the bar exam in Washington, DC, and continued his successful career in the U.S. at a top DC law firm. These five distinguished panelists will be interviewed by another foreign law graduate with an LL.M. who passed the New York bar exam.

The panelists want to answer your questions! Please share your questions with our esteemed moderator by March 24, 2023, by emailing them to either Jaipat Singh Jain (jjain@lpgmlaw.com), or Angela Benson (angela.benson@americanbar.org). The program is free to all.
